6 OF Women SYMB

Wouldn't there be a run on the employment agency for jobs? And wouldn't a lot of prayers be answered? For we would have some reforms that reform, if women would quit nullifying their efforts.

Sally knows that all she has got to do when she finds out that John is not a hero of romance, but a plain, ordinary man with a streak of good and a streak of bad in him, is to put on her hat and go to mother, who will receive her with open arms.

"Nonsense! Go back home and behave yourself. Of course John isn't an angel. What would you do with him if he was? He's just an average man, but he'll make you a mighty good living, which is more than you could make for yourself if you

That would put a stop at the very beginning of trouble to 99 per cent. of the divorcees. But, alas and alack! there are few such mothers, because women are brought up to override the sympathy business.
